

Özyeğin University was established in 2007 to be a unique university that contributes to social development with its contemporary education system, its innovative structure intertwined with life, its educational approach intertwined with sectors and the programs it has created under its vision.

Özyeğin University Çekmeköy Campus was designed by the world's leading architectural firm that had made the drawings of Cambridge and Princeton Universities and the campus is a quiet university campus with Turkey's first LEED Gold Certification. There are quiet and comfortable study rooms in the campus, which was established on a total area of 280,000 m² with modern classrooms and laboratories, a sports center of 15.000 m², a library of 2.825 m², and 2 auditoriums with capacities of 350 and 372 people. The university aims to provide students with opportunities in every subject and to be educated with social, sportive and cultural activities as well as academic development.

Özyeğin University started its education with the "research-based entrepreneurship university" approach by embracing the mission of the 3rd Generation universities such as MIT and Cambridge, the leaders in this field, and continues with the aim of "conducting studies that create added value for the society".

Özyeğin University, which was established to serve the society as a research and entrepreneurial learning center intertwined with life, provides its students with an innovative education model that creates added value, has in-depth knowledge of the emerging professions, has a good command of foreign languages, is competent in the use of communication and information technologies, and has practical skills. The university aims to have graduates with the desire and determination to make a difference in their environment and the institutions they will work with, with the knowledge and experience they have gained in the courses and the real world. The university educates not only "professionals" but "entrepreneurs".

The university presents a total of 23 bachelor programs at the university at 6 faculties and 2 schools. There are 25 graduate programs in 3 institutes. It prepares its students for life in a total area of 283,000 m² in its campus in Çekmeköy.

The leading values of Özyeğin University are freedom, flexibility, multidimensionality, and accessibility. The university is an advocate of academic freedom and institutional autonomy. The university provides wide flexibility to its students, its members and the institutions it cooperates with. With features such as flexible structures, dynamic programs and freedom in course selection, the university provides its students and researchers with education and research opportunities that can adapt to the rapidly changing business life and can be personalized according to individual differences. The university has developed a climate that accommodates different cultures and perspectives. The university will thrive with an environment of diversity that supports creativity, learning and exploration and creates different opportunities for intercultural exchanges. In this context, international students and faculty members, exchange programs, and international cooperation stand out.

Özyeğin University Library is a living and learning center with its 2,825 m2 area, three floors, equipped with advanced technology, high-level technology, rich book and movie collection, and a wide and comfortable working environment. It is an exemplary library with a modern design suitable for the needs of the new generation. It supports the education, training and research needs of the university with its user-centred, quality, creative information resources and services. For this purpose, it creates its collections with academic staff and students and diversifies its services.
